Dispute Over Location Of Permanent Headquarters
Takes Spotlight

LONDON, Feb. 8.—United Nations leaders opened a speedup drive today to adjourn Tuesday night, giving impetus to a campaign to postpone a decision on a permanent headquarters site until the next meeting of the assembly.

UNO whips scheduled meetings for morning, afternoon, evening and Sunday in a bid to wind up pending business in the next four days.

France proposed a formal resolution to empower the secretary general to select an interim site for the next UNO meeting in September and delay selection of permanent headquarters until then.

The French took the lead in opposing location of either temporary or permanent headquarters in the New York area. Opponents of the Stamford-Greenwich area were confident that this recommended site would not be approved at this session.

A steering committee decision to try to complete this meeting by Tuesday gave weight to the move to put off a choice of the location of permanent headquarters.

The site question was one of four major issues threatening to prolong the assembly beyond Tuesday.

President Paul-Henri Spaak told the steering committee that nearly all delegations wanted to leave London by Wednesday at the latest.

Spaak said there were 19 items on the assembly agenda, but all except four were relatively minor. In addition to the site question, the matter of representation of the World Federation of Trade Unions in a consultative status was pending. It still was in the committee stage.

The third matter was a White Russian proposal that the United Nations help in the extradition of war criminal suspects to the area where their alleged crimes were committed. The fourth was the consideration of refugees. The Russians oppose any effort to get UNO action on this problem.

The permanent headquarters committee was bogged down in debate. The Belgian delegate said the public would think the UNO acted rashly if it chose the Stamford-Greenwich site without full information on the cost involved.

The Iraq delegate said New York was too big, too diversified and too hectic for UNO deliberations. He said he never saw a day pass in New York when some newspaper was not attacking someone.

The steering committee unanimously agreed to send to the as-

FEPC Bill Will Die Saturday

Formal Election Set For
4 P. M., Is Delayed By Wedding Plans

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The bill to establish a permanent fair employment practices commission faced the death sentence today after more than three weeks of pounding from a southern Democratic filibuster.

The formal execution was scheduled for 4 p. m. tomorrow when the senate votes on a proposal to limit debate on the measure. Both sides agreed it would fail to pass, forcing the senate to drop FEPC so it can consider other important legislation.

It will be a complete victory for the fire-breathing southerners. They had tied up the senate in such a parliamentary tangle that it couldn't even vote on debate limitation unless the Southerners agreed. The filibusters agreed yesterday after making sure they had sufficient strength to defeat such a closure, which would require a two-thirds vote.

FEPC supporters, virtually admitting defeat, said they would settle for a roll call closure vote that would put each senator on record. Their solid front crumbled in a few hours after senate Republican leader Wallace H. White, Jr., Me., denounced FEPC as "evil" and said he would vote against closure.

The exact time for the vote on closure was influenced by Abraham Lincoln's birthday and the marriage of Gloria Chavez, daughter of Sen. Dennis Chavez, D., N. M., FEPC sponsor.

Under senate rules, the closure vote could not come before Saturday—a day on which the senate usually does not meet. Many Re-

SENATE COOL TO CASE BILL

House-Approved Measure May Be Rejected; Milder
Program Studied

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The senate gave a cool reception today to the two-fisted case strike-control bill which won overwhelming approval yesterday in the house.

The bill got hardly a nod from the senate labor committee which was about to start writing its own labor measure. It plans something far milder than the house bill, which was approved by a 255-155 vote.

Some senators saw a strong possibility that the senate would reject the Case bill completely. In any event they believed it was in for at least a major overhauling to eliminate some of its teeth.

Sen. James E. Murray, D., Mont., chairman of the senate labor committee, hoped to finish hearings tomorrow on the President's fact-finding bill with the testimony of CIO President Philip Murray.

He predicted the committee would water-down even the President's bill—and that measure is no where near so tough as the house bill introduced by Rep. Francis Case, R., S. D.

Most senate committee members warmed up to only one provision in the Case bill—the one calling for a strengthened and better-paid mediation service in the labor department.

The committee was split sharply over other sections, including a provision to make labor unions subject to civil suit for strike violence of breach of contract.

It also appeared likely that the senate committee might not approve the Case plan to take away a union's bargaining rights because of strike violence.

The house-approved bill also would permit labor-management boards to use court injunctions to enforce a 30-day cooling off period before a strike may begin in a major industry. It would crack down on jurisdictional disputes, and prohibit union boycotts. It discourages foremen's unions.

SOVIET CHARGES AGAINST NAZIS ARE PRESENTED

Russian Prosecutor Tells
Court Germans Plotted
Death Of Races

NUERNBERG, Feb. 8.—Soviet Prosecutor Gen. Roman A. Rudenko told the war crimes tribunal today that the Germans destroyed or partly destroyed 1,710 towns and 70,000 villages in the Soviet Union, leaving 25,000,000 persons homeless.

He charged the Germans plotted extermination of whole races and carried out the program by inoculating victims with spotted fever and by mass executions.

Rudenko estimated that the total damage "from criminal acts of Hitlerite armies was 679 billion rubles (approximately $135,000,000,000 at prewar rates) in 1941."

He said the Germans burned, looted, destroyed or desecrated 2,800 churches or church buildings in Russia including 237 Catholic churches.

They also destroyed 40,000 hospitals, 84,000 schools and 31,850 factories, he said.

Rudenko said German soldiers dressed in church vestments, kept horses and dogs in the churches and made bunks in the sanctuaries. "We haven't the right to leave unpunished those who organized and were guilty of these monstrous crimes," he declared. "For the sake of the future security of nations we are presenting the defendants with a just and complete bill which must be paid."

Rudenko, dressed in a brown uniform, faced the judges but glanced occasionally at the defendants.

Hermann Goering removed his earphones and quit listening to the translation after the first few minutes of the speech. Several other defendants followed his example.

Rudenko, in opening the Soviet prosecution, demanded "just retribution and severe punishment of Hitler's henchmen."

The outrages they committed, he declared, were considered criminal acts under all criminal codes throughout the world.

He said the Soviet, the United States, Britain and France all accused the defendants of having ruled over the entire German state and war machine.

"Through criminal conspiracy," he said, "they turned the German state into a mechanism for preparation and prosecution of international aggression and into a mechanism for the extermination of millions of innocent people."

SIGN PROTESTS CITY SIDEWALK 'WAITING ROOM'

Public protest was expressed in a sign placed by the side of a sickening sight in front of Guy Campbell's Circle Press Friday morning reading, "City Leased Waiting Room Awaiting Arrival of City Employed Janitor."

The poster, placed in protest to use of the sidewalk as "a waiting room for patrons of the taxi company" attracted considerable attention. The mess on the sidewalk was finally cleaned up by the city service department.

Clarence Helvering, service director, said that the city could not be called upon to clean up every sidewalk whenever it became littered and said that keeping the sidewalks clean was the duty of the property owners.

Mr. Campbell has complained to city council on several occasions that the taxi company creates a nuisance at night by calling to taxis across the street from the company's office on the second floor of an adjoining building.

The noise during the night is incessant, continually disturbs sleep, Mr. Campbell said Friday.

Mr. Campbell also complained that taxi patrons use his shop as a waiting room, interrupting his work. Mrs. Campbell said that she had already cleaned the sidewalk three times this week and that the messes on the sidewalks were regular occurrences.

Administration Farm Policies Blamed For Food Export Shortage

BY GRANT DILLMAN
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Administration farm policies were blamed by some Republicans today for this country's inability to funnel more food to hungry and destitute peoples abroad.

The charges were made as government agencies went about the job of implementing President Truman's program for saving food at home in order to relieve starvation in war-ravaged areas of Europe and Asia.

Farm state Republican congressmen, attending their annual Lincoln day dinner here, agreed that this country should and must do its share to feed our allies and, if possible, our former enemies.

But they said that the United States might have been able to send far more food overseas during current crisis if administration farm policies had not stifled food production. They were particularly critical of subsidies and price control.

Typical comment was that of Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, Iowa Republican whose home state is one of the nation's largest corn producers.

"We should help Europe all we can," he said. "But it is unfortunate that we have not produced more so that we would be in a better position to help them."

Because of administration policies, he said, "we have achieved only partial production during the past five months. During that time we could have produced five to seven per cent more food if

TRUMAN SHARES FUN AT PARTY IN WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—It was young folks' night at the White House last night but President Truman couldn't resist sharing a few moments of the fun.

The occasion was a dinner-dance—first one at the White House since Pearl Harbor—honoring Gloria Chavez, daughter of New Mexico's Democratic Sen. Dennis Chavez. She is to be married Saturday to Lt. Jorge Tristani of Puerto Rico.

At the height of the dancing, Mr. Truman strolled into the east room of the White House and chatted with daughter Margaret's guests.

Mrs. Truman turned over the White House to the young people shortly after she greeted the 16 members of the bridal party as they arrived for dinner. Dinner was served in the flower-decked state dining room.

About 9:30 p. m. the bridal party was joined in the east room by approximately 50 other guests for dancing to the waltzes and rumbas of the Marine band.

WALLACE HITS DEMOCRATS BY LABOR BACKING

Endorsement Of Labor Party
Candidate By Secretary
Stirs Speculation

BY LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace has smacked the New York city Democratic organization in the eye with endorsement of an American Labor party candidate for congress.

The candidate is Johannes Steel, a German-born naturalized citizen. Steel is an author, lecturer and radio commentator whose works are notable among other things for sympathy with the Communist party line. He is a candidate for congress in a by-election to be held Feb. 19 in an east side New York city district.

Steel's Tammany-Democratic opponent is Rep. Arthur G. Klein. The Republicans nominated a young Army officer, William S. Shea. The district is lopsidedly Democratic and has not sent a Republican to the house in years—if ever. Steel's candidacy unquestionably will split the Democratic vote and the otherwise assured prospects of the Democratic candidate are diminished accordingly.

Under those circumstances Wallace addressed to Steel a letter endorsing his candidacy. Wallace's office confirmed the endorsement to the United Press but refused to release the letter for publication because it was personal.

The cabinet officer's action probably will arouse considerable discussion here on two counts. First is the secretary's opposition to the regular Democratic candidate. Second is the fact that among three candidates he chose the American labor party entry whose economic and political convictions apparently are far to the left of most Americans.

Wallace on the one hand is backing an extreme left winger for congress and on the other heads the department of commerce which has a peculiarly intimate relationship with and responsibility to industry and business. To enable Wallace to develop a wide-swinging program to aid business, and especially small business, President Truman has proposed to congress that the commerce department's appropriation for the next fiscal year be increased by more than 100 per cent.

MURDER CHARGES ARE ON FILE IN RAIL SHOOTING

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Feb. 8.—Formal charges of murder were on file today against four Toledo, Peoria & Western railroad guards, charged with killing two union pickets and wounding three others.

The murder warrants, issued by Circuit Judge A. L. Campbell, were signed by Garland F. Brown, Peoria, Ill., chairman of the strike committee of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen, which has been on strike since Oct. 1, when the road was returned to private management after being operated under federal control.

The railroad guards named in the warrants waived preliminary hearings, yesterday, permitting the case to go directly to the McClean county grand jury.

The shootings, climaxing more than four years of turbulent labor relations on the 231-mile feeder line, occurred Wednesday, when pickets attempted to halt movement of a four-car train over the strikebound road.

Meanwhile, Gov. Dwight Green refused a request of George P. McNear, Jr., TP&W president, requesting that the state militia be called to protect the railroad's operation.

In a telegram to the railroad executive, Green denounced "indiscriminate gunplay" and called for an investigation of the tragedy.

Strike-Idle Machinists Find Gold

By EDWARD L. THOMAS
United Press Staff Correspondent

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 8.—Two strike-idle machinists were discovered today making a comfortable living panning gold on San Francisco's beaches within shouting distance of the Golden Gate.

Ninety-eight years after James Wadsworth discovered gold in California and started the historic westward rush, Albert Pratt, 34, and Joseph (Sandy) Saunders, 42, found that there was still enough of the yellow metal lying around within the city limits to net them $6 a day apiece.

It's no bonanza, though. In fact, the two enterprising machinists admit they are working harder—for less money—than they ever did as employees of the Bethlehem Steel Corp.

The men have been on strike from the steel plant since Oct. 29, but it wasn't until two weeks ago that Pratt, a former miner, hit upon the idea of prospecting. A near-flat pocketbook inspired him.

Since then, he and Saunders have been filtering black beach dirt through a crude, mercury-lined sluice box every day, from dawn to dusk. Their claim is a wide stretch of beach between the city zoo and the military reservation at Fort Funston, an area that was off-limits for civilians and heavily-guarded during the war.

A couple of other oldtimers who have prospected the same beach for years have their own claim staked out nearby.

ARMY WANTS TO CONTINUE W A C

War Department Expected To Ask Congress To Provide
Permanent Setup

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The war department was expected today to propose soon that congress provide for a permanent peacetime organization of women within the regular army.

Meanwhile, the department hoped to keep WACs in the service as long as possible during the Army's present manpower emergency.

Plans for a permanent women's army organization are expected to go to congress in advance of proposed legislation for the Army's peacetime organization.

This, the war department hopes, will induce women now in service to stay on and make a career of it.

The permanent organization is expected to comprise the WACs, nurse corps, and women's medical specialist corps, including physical therapy and occupational therapy technicians and dietitians. Provision also is expected for an organized women's reserve.

FANCY DRESS OF NAVY OFFICERS MAY DISAPPEAR

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—The Navy indicated today that the historic cocked hats, frock coats and gold epaulettes worn by Navy officers at peacetime formal functions may soon be thrown overboard.

In an annual report to President Truman, Secretary of Navy James Forrestal said changes are being considered in all officers' uniforms.

"This work, however," he noted, "is not being pushed as aggressively as changes in the uniforms for enlisted men."

"It was proceeded far enough, however, so that we are fairly sure that the old fore-and-aft hats, frock coats and epaulettes of the Navy dress uniform will not return."

The Navy recently announced that it is designing new uniforms—sans bell-bottomed trousers—for enlisted personnel.

MEAT PROGRAM PROPOSED

Fact-Finders Recommend
16-Cent An Hour Pay
Boost For Workers

Two new wage agreements raised hopes today that a postwar strike wave, which has idled 1,460,000 American workers, might soon subside.

A negotiating committee representing 3,500 AFL longshoremen announced that it had reached complete agreement with New York harbor tugboat operators, and the Briggs Manufacturing Company signed a contract with the CIO United Auto Workers.

Capt. William Bradley, president of the longshoremen's local, said striking crewmen would decide today whether to accept the wage proposal and return to work. The tugboat strike precipitated a critical fuel shortage in the New York city area.

Other labor developments:

1. The meat fact-finding panel recommended a 16-cent an hour wage increase for packing house workers. The AFL Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen's union said it would recommend that the proposal be accepted. The CIO packing house workers union was to consider the proposal next week.

2. President Truman conferred with steel labor-management representatives and government economists and said he hoped to announce within a day or two a wage-price formula for settling the steel and other strikes.

3. The house of representatives passed a stringent strike-control bill making labor and management liable to penalties for violating contracts, banning strike violence and setting up a national mediation board.

4. At Bloomington, Ill., the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen filed murder charges against four guards accused of shooting two pickets to death when they tried to halt a Toledo, Peoria & Western railroad freight train.

The contract yesterday between the Briggs Manufacturing Company and the CIO United Auto Workers provided a wage increase of 18 1/2 cents an hour for 12,000 employees in Detroit and Evansville, Ind. A few hours earlier the UAW signed an agreement for pay (Continued on Page Two)

IMPOSTER HELD AFTER CAREER AS LIEUTENANT

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 8.—David Harrison Martin, who posed as a first lieutenant while he wooed the major's daughter, sat glumly in county jail today, awaiting sentence for juvenile delinquency.

Martin confessed that he "borrowed" an officer's uniform, complete with combat ribbons, and visited the Santa Ana base with two lieutenants he met on a street corner. They introduced him around and lodged him in the officers' quarters. He stayed there three months, the FBI said, using faked credentials and piling up 11 counts of juvenile delinquency.

The FBI said he often went flying with other officers and took the controls while in the air. Once he flew a blimp.

He palled around with the other lieutenants, squired a major's daughter to parties and exchanged tales of combat. The FBI said.

Officers who knew him thought him strange, but blamed it on combat fatigue, the FBI said. They thought he was being treated for psychoneurosis at a nearby Army hospital.

He was arrested when a brother officer discovered him taking a raincoat that did not belong to him. FBI officers who searched his quarters said they found 300 items they believed were stolen from other fliers—including clothes, guns, watches, jewelry, medals, cigarette lighters, cameras and two yo-yos.

raises of 18 to 26 cents an hour, claimed to be the largest in the industry so far, for 800 employees at the Champion Spark Plug Company, Detroit.

The contracts were announced as government mediator James F. Dewey admitted that negotiations on minor issues of the General Motors strike were stalemated.

The federal meat panel held that five cents of the 16-cent an hour raise recommended for packinghouse workers could be absorbed by the industry. The other 11 cents, the board said, was approvable under the present wage stabilization policy and could be used as a basis for a demand for increased prices on subsidies.

The wage issue precipitated a nation-wide meat strike last month. The workers returned to their jobs shortly after the government seized the packing plants. Approximately 20,000 members of District 33, United Steelworkers of America (CIO), joined the nationwide steel walkout today in support of demands for higher wages.

District 33, comprising all of Minnesota, Wisconsin and part of Upper Michigan, had not struck previously in compliance with Minnesota's labor laws.

Production in the giant Minnesota steel mills ground to a halt yesterday, and only maintenance workers remained on the job when the strike became effective at one minute after midnight.

price ceilings had not been too low."

Rep. A. L. Miller, R., Neb., said the necessity of sending livestock to market to conserve grain would provide a large surplus of meat "which we can use in Europe without hurting ourselves."

He said lack of rail transportation was one reason for the domestic grain shortage. Some Nebraska elevator men estimate that it will take two years to move their present grain yield to market at the current rate of shipment, he said.

The program also was criticized by milling industry leaders who contended that the new wheat extraction order was unnecessary. They said the public could not use harvest wheat flour effectively. Most of the wheat kernel already was being used in one form or another, they added.

The Associated Retail Bakers of America sent Mr. Truman a telegram promising "full cooperation" but added the hope that the extraction order would be reviewed at an "early time."

The administration's program means that Americans will eat less luxuriously for a while with the exception of a temporary increase in meat and dairy supplies as grain-consuming animals are produced to market.

After several months these items too will become more scarce. Pork probably will return to normal soon after feed again is plentiful. But it may take as long as three years to rebuild the nation's shrunken beef and dairy herds.

It still had not been determined exactly how farmers would be induced to market their livestock. It could be done either by increasing price ceilings on corn or by cutting the support price on pork.

Sending lighter hogs to market will mean less lard at a time when fats and oils already are a problem. And raising the extraction rate for flour—which will mean darker bread—also will mean less bran for dairy cattle.

LONDON AREA IS ROCKED BY BOMB EXPLOSION

LONDON, Feb. 8.—A heavy explosion at the site of the "Donald Duck" bomb excavation in St. James park today rattled the windows of Buckingham palace, the house of commons and the meeting place of the United Nations.

The explosion was caused by the buried bomb's fuse and the TNT used to destroy it. The bomb itself was neutralized last night when jets of steam melted out its internal organs.

Nobody was killed in the explosion. A black smoke cloud billowed above central London, and the noise echoed over a large area.

Deaths and Funerals

MRS. ROBERT L. LAYTON

Mrs. Robert L. Layton, 94, formerly of Columbus and native of Yellowbud, where she taught school for several years, died early Thursday morning at the home of her grand niece, Mrs. James R. Toole, of near Chillicothe. Death was due to the infirmities of age.

She was born at Yellowbud, March 28, 1851, the daughter of Levi and Eliza Ann Lee Barton. After the death of her parents she resided at the home of her sister, Mrs. Isaac Lutz. She was united in marriage to Mr. Layton and they made their home in Columbus, where she lived until a few months ago. Mr. Layton preceded her in death several years ago.

Mrs. Layton was a member of the Senior Hesperian Society of Columbus and the Gift street Methodist church. Each year she was honored with a birthday dinner given by those organizations and also one given in her honor by her many grand nieces and nephews to whom she was known as "Aunt Lydia."

She is survived by the following nieces: Mrs. Ira L. May, Wayne township; Mrs. W. K. Orr, Kingdon; and Mrs. Clark Beale, Mt. Sterling. She is also survived by several grand nieces and nephews.

the stresses developing now within the New Deal-Democratic political powerhouse created by the late Franklin D. Roosevelt. There is deep, fundamental and widening division in that coalition. Unless the structure can be repaired the chances of electing a Democratic president in 1948 will not be great.

Another example is the public attack by Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes upon Edwin W. Pauley, the California oil man named by Mr. Truman to be under-secretary of navy.

treated from their stands. A source close to Pauley said he "most definitely" would not withdraw in view of the strong support given him by President Truman. The President said Pauley was honest and that he would back him up.

Despite speculation to the contrary, Ickes apparently had no intentions to quit his cabinet post as result of the furore. A source close to Ickes recalled that he frequently had differed sharply with the late President Roosevelt, and still held his job.

Sen. Robert A. Taft, R., O., a member of the banking committee, said Allen might be confirmed but only on "one condition." He did not elaborate but it was believed he meant assurances from President Truman that he did not plan to make Allen chairman of RFC.

Allen, testifying before the committee yesterday, said he had no indications from the President that he was to be chairman. The chairman, he explained, is elected by the RFC board members.

1946 HUDSONS ON DISPLAY AT MOATS & GEORGE

New 1946 Hudson automobiles are now on display at the new Moats and George Motor Sales room at 160 East Franklin street.

Robert V. George, member of the firm, said that deliveries will be made as rapidly as possible and those placing the first orders will get the first cars. He said the new models are winning instant approval of the car-hungry public.

Mr. George has been advised by the factory that Hudson is in a unique position for production by reason of early reconversion, early orders for materials and an integrated plant that enables an unusually high percentage of the completed auto's components. He continued:

"The new models are being offered in two distinctly different style lines—the Super series and the Commodore series, each available with six or eight cylinder engines. However, immediate production schedules call for four-door sedans powered by six-cylinder engines followed by broughams and club coupes. Three passenger coupes and convertibles will be added to the Hudson line as rapidly as urgent demands for first production models will permit. Convertibles and eight-cylinder powered cars in both the Super and Commodore series will be produced as rapidly as possible."

sensibly a Panamanian resolution asking the UNO to boycott the Franco regime of Spain. Roberto Jimenez, delegate from Panama, proposed the resolution. He was supported by France, Venezuela and the Soviets.

The site controversy outweighed in general interest the Ukrainian charges made in the security council against British troops in Indonesia. The council was expected to dispose of the case quickly when it meets again Saturday, on the basis that the British troops were sent to Indonesia by orders of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, supreme Pacific commander.

Delegates were puzzled at the weakness of the case presented by Dmitri Manulski, chief Ukrainian delegate. He based his case entirely upon newspaper clippings, and backed down from his original demands for withdrawal of the British troops.

Traffic was by-passed around the square at the north end of Forest cemetery Friday morning so that a huge old White elm tree by the highway could be felled. The old dying tree, one of 15 being chopped down at the cemetery, this year had been attacked by Dutch Elm disease, which threatening several trees at the cemetery.

City Service Director Clarence Helvering and Officer Elmer Meriman by-passed traffic so that the tree at the northeast corner of the cemetery could be cut down.

E. O. Crites, superintendent of the cemetery, said that 15 dying trees were chopped down last year also. But there are still plenty of trees in the cemetery, he said. He said there are between 500 and 600 trees on the 87 acres of ground that comprise the cemetery which 10,300 persons are buried.

Action Planned To Increase Supply Available To Eastern Mills

Action designed to increase the supply of wheat available to mills in the southwestern and eastern states has been taken by the U. S. Department of Agriculture by calling all loans on 1945-crop farm stored and warehouse stored wheat in 22 states on March 1, Pickaway county farm officials have been informed.

The call date is two months ahead of expiration of the loans. The department also advanced to March 1 its earlier offer to pay farmers the full parity price for 1945-crop wheat still under Government loan in all states. The earlier offer was for wheat under loan on April 1 and May 1.

States where wheat loans are being called include Colorado, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas, Wyoming, Delaware, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Maryland, Michigan, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, and Virginia.

The March 1 purchase price for all States will be 15 cents a bushel above the applicable loan value, less charges. These charges include interest to the date of purchase and accrued unpaid warehouse charges through the storage year under the Uniform Grain Storage Agreement.

The 1945 loan averages nationally $1.35 a bushel or 90 percent of the July 1, 1945 parity of $1.50 a bushel. As of December 31, 1945 the Commodity Credit Corporation was holding 43,391,000 bushels of 1945-crop wheat as collateral for loans. Of this total, about 13,000,000 bushels were under loan in the States where loans are being called.

WOMAN, 60, SHOTS DEER
WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 — This Jennie Berry, 60-year-old local resident, claims to be the oldest woman to shoot a deer in Wyoming the past season. She drilled a seven-point buck in the shoulder from 100 yards while hunting on a ranch northwest of Cody. Art Leafdale of Thermopolis dressed it for her, but she asserted that "I could have done it myself if he hadn't been alone."

BETTER FOOD IS PRESENT AIM OF MOST FARMERS

Most farmers are beginning to see that a higher quality food is the prime need of the nation today, a Ohio Farm Bureau spokesman said today. "Farmers realize that by producing highly nutritious food, he is promoting a healthier nation and opening a better market for his products," he said.

The high rate of rejections by Selective Service during the war made dieticians aware of the fact that our soil was greatly depleted of its rich deposits. The remedy as agronomists see it and farmers are adopting is the restoration of these necessary mineral elements to the soil through plowing under legume crops and crop residue and by applying sufficient quantities of mixed fertilizers containing nitrogen, phosphorus and potash.

WHEAT LOANS CALLED EARLY BY GOVERNMENT

Action Planned To Increase Supply Available To Eastern Mills

Action designed to increase the supply of wheat available to mills in the southwestern and eastern states has been taken by the U. S. Department of Agriculture by calling all loans on 1945-crop farm stored and warehouse stored wheat in 22 states on March 1, Pickaway county farm officials have been informed.

The call date is two months ahead of expiration of the loans. The department also advanced to March 1 its earlier offer to pay farmers the full parity price for 1945-crop wheat still under Government loan in all states. The earlier offer was for wheat under loan on April 1 and May 1.

States where wheat loans are being called include Colorado, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas, Wyoming, Delaware, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Maryland, Michigan, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, and Virginia.

The March 1 purchase price for all states will be 15 cents a bushel above the applicable loan value, less charges. These charges include interest to the date of purchase and accrued unpaid warehouse charges through the storage year under the Uniform Grain Storage Agreement.

The 1945 loan averages nationally $1.38 a bushel or 90 percent of the July 1, 1945 parity of $1.53 a bushel. As of December 31, 1945 the Commodity Credit Corporation was holding 43,391,000 bushels of 1945-crop wheat as collateral for loans. Of this total, about 13,000,000 bushels were under loan in the States where loans are being called.

BETTER FOOD IS PRESENT AIM OF MOST FARMERS

Most farmers are beginning to see that a higher quality food is the prime need of the nation today, a Ohio Farm Bureau spokesman said today. "Farmers realize that by producing highly nutritious food, he is promoting a healthier nation and opening a better market for his products," he said.

The high rate of rejections by Selective Service during the war made dieticians aware of the fact that our soil was greatly depleted of its rich deposits. The remedy as agronomists see it and farmers are adopting is the restoration of these necessary mineral elements to the soil through plowing under legume crops and crop residue and by applying sufficient quantities of mixed fertilizers containing nitrogen, phosphorous and potash.

SIX GAMES ON CAGE PROGRAM

Circleville Entertains Blue Lions At Roll And Bowl; County Teams Busy

Last big Friday night of basketball in Pickaway county is scheduled tonight when Circleville plays Washington C. H. here and five county league games are scheduled.

The CHS Tigers will play here again next week but county league activity ends Tuesday night with the annual tournament scheduled to start on Thursday.

The Tigers, reserves and varsity, plan to make their South Central Ohio league record better at the expense of the Washington teams in Roll and Bowl tonight.

The Blue Lions have been showing some good play but if the Tigers can reach their usual "Friday night" form they will have a good chance to hand the Washington team a defeat.

Reserves of the two schools play at about 7 p. m. with the varsity contest following about 8:15 p. m.

In the county Ashville plays at Williamsport; Saltcreek at Walnut; Monroe at Pickaway; Scioto at Jackson and Darby at Perry.

Opposition for the Williams club will be furnished by the Curtis-Wright team organized by Ray Stinson. The team is composed mostly of veterans, includes such Columbus stars as Bill Wiley, Al Link, Jack Westall, Russ Alban, Dale Cooper, Bob Eberhart, Jack Figgins, Warren Carter, Howard Gentry and Jack Richards.

Reserve teams of the two squads will meet at 1:30 p. m. with the first team game following.

"Assignment Home," the Army Service Forces series heard Saturday night with the July 7 broadcast, days, moves to a night spot, beings of Friday's games will determine the fourth team to be spotted in the tournament setup.

Because Ashville won the tournament last year, Walter L. Harris, superintendent of the school, again is manager of the tournament. He announced that Jack Landrum and "Chuck" Koterba, both of Columbus, would be referees. Edwin Irwin, Ashville, is scorekeeper and Conrad Johnson, Ashville, timekeeper.

Some of the rules and regulations follow:

Play will start at 6:30 p. m. for the first two sessions and at 7:30 p. m. for the semi-finals and finals. There will be 10 minutes between games.

ELIGIBILITY LIST: A list of 14 players whose eligibility must be certified by the head of the school shall be submitted to the tournament manager before the first session. Only ten of these players may be used in any week-end tournament. Only ten players will be permitted on the floor in

ISALY'S 5 TAKES CAGE LOOP LEAD

Merchants Defeated 45-39;
Williams, Eshelman's
Other Winners

Isaly's cagers took over the lead in the Industrial league and avenged their only league loss of the season Thursday night when they defeated Roundtown Merchants 45-39 in a close contest.

Isaly's jumped out in front early and was on top 23-16 at the half.

High scorers on the Isaly team were held down, but all seven players used, contributed points. Joe Kenney had 10 and Leon Sims 9. Bob Moon, of the losers, was high man with 15 points.

Williams AC rolled up the points at the expense of John Deere, winning 61-42. "Snapper" Ankrom led the winners with 23 points. C. Gulick counted 12. Siegwald's 15 was high for the losers.

In the other game Eshelman handed Williamsport a 48-30 defeat. Rodgers led the winners with 12 points. C. Schleich had 10 for the losers.

Eshelman's led 17-12 at the half, but in the last two periods cut loose a scoring barrage that pushed up the total fast.

TOURNEY OPENS ON THURSDAY

Drawings To Be Completed
After Games Tonight;
Other Plans Made

Everything was ready but the schedule Friday for the 1946 Pickaway county basketball tournament.

The annual classic opens at Roll and Bowl at 6:30 p. m., Thursday, February 14. Play continues on Saturday, February 16, and February 21 and 23.

Final plans were made at a meeting of superintendents and coaches Thursday night at Betz restaurant, but the schedule was not completed. Seeding presented a problem. New Holland, Ashville, and Monroe have been seeded but results of Friday's games will determine the fourth team to be spotted in the tournament setup.

Because Ashville won the tournament last year, Walter L. Harris, superintendent of the school, again is manager of the tournament. He announced that Jack Landrum and "Chuck" Koterba, both of Columbus, would be referees. Edwin Irwin, Ashville, is scorekeeper and Conrad Johnson, Ashville, timekeeper.

Some of the rules and regulations follow:

Play will start at 6:30 p. m. for the first two sessions and at 7:30 p. m. for the semi-finals and finals. There will be 10 minutes between games.

ELIGIBILITY LISTS: A list of 14 players whose eligibility must be certified by the head of the school shall be submitted to the tournament manager before the first session. Only ten of these players may be used in any week-end tournament. Only ten players will be permitted on the floor in uniform at any game. DRESSING ROOMS: Teams drawing or occupying the upper line of a game bracket shall use dressing room No. 1. This will be the one nearest the southeast stairway which players shall use to descend to the dressing rooms from the playing floor. Teams on the lower line of the game bracket shall use room No. 2. Teams should not go to dressing rooms to dress or leave parcels until after the beginning of the game just preceding their own game. Clothes and parcels should be removed immediately after their game.

TROPHIES: There is a trophy for each of the three teams which go to the district tournament. The trophy for first-place winner was donated by P. J. Burkart, representative of Herff-Jones

CURE FOR INFLATION

THERE is only one preventive of inflation, one cure for it when once started. Production in quantity is preventive and cure both.

As long as stiff-necked leaders of labor and industry both insist on holding men idle in important industries, they are contributing to inflation—not to a mere inflationary discomfort, but to the kind of inflation which soon becomes a serious danger.

Both sides know they must get together some time at some point. Why do not the workers produce while negotiations go on? Raises later agreed on can be made retroactive. Idleness during discussion creates losses to everyone.

The American people are beginning to come into the strike picture. Labor, Management, Administration, all must reckon with the voice of the people, long in arousing to expression, but, once articulated, hard to silence. That voice now says sternly: "Let the work go on!"

TOO MUCH TALK

DESPITE the fact that Georgia's Senator Russell staged a four and a half hour talking marathon during the senate filibuster the other day, he broke no oratorical records. The senator, who was holding forth against President Truman's Fair Employment Practices Commission bill, is still a long way behind the filibustering champion, Senator R. M. LaFollette, who spoke for 18 hours and 23 minutes against a 1908 currency bill, and for a good deal of that time read names from a Washington telephone book.

In the present filibuster Russell was joined by other senators, among them the two from Mississippi—Bilbo, experienced in obstruction, and his less seasoned colleagues Eastland. The latter is reported to fortify himself for such arduous speech-making by following athletes' training rules of early-to-bed and a careful diet.

This barrage of words against the FEPC is a legal part of the American system, one phase of democracy at work. The senators, who go to Washington to carry out the people's will, apparently think the folks back home want them to talk.

HOSE VISIBILITY

WOMEN'S stockings are going to continue scarce for many months, say the trade experts. And many women seem distressed about it. But a mere man may be pardoned, perhaps, for failing to understand what the grief is about. For so far as an ordinary male can see, in an ordinary situation, the difference—if any—between nylons and no nylons is practically imperceptible.

Of course the matter probably looks different to a woman.

UP AND DOWN BROADWAY

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—The earnings of a top movie star being what they are, the chances are pretty good that Miss Greer Garson will never have to transact business with a pawn broker, but anyway she now has a tiara against a possible rainy day.

She picked up the topaze-studded red and yellow gold headpiece in a private salon of the Radio City music hall before a small gathering (they were gathering in drinks and sandwiches) of press people. The music hall management made the gift and was big enough to admit that a certain amount of crass commercialism entered into the deal.

G. S. Eyssell, president and manager of the place, pointed out that it had been decided to crown Miss Garson as "queen of the Music Hall" because since 1940 she has headed the casts of seven successful films which have played a total of 54 weeks to 8,011,166 persons in his theater. And it just so happens that today brought the Music Hall premiere of her latest, "Adventure," with Clark Gable—"Gable's back and Garson's got him," as the ads say.

Miss Garson showed up chaperoned by a publicity man from the M-G-M factory in Hollywood; her mother, Mrs. Nina Garson, who arrived with her by train from the coast on Monday, and her mother-in-law, Mrs. Charlotte Ney, of Washington D. C. The star's husband, actor Richard Ney, stayed in Hollywood.

The actress wore a knee-length afternoon gown which consisted of a black velvet upper section, with a neckline that revealed a great deal of Greer, and a skirt of gold on black in a herringbone pattern. She wore a gold necklace and black slippers and carried a black persian pouch with gold trimmings.

When Eyssell placed the tiara on her pink champagne colored hair, she stood it for about 30 seconds and then had to fiddle with it after the manner of anyone dissatisfied with outside efforts at arranging a hat on the head. She took it off while she made a little speech of thanks.

"Life is full of surprises," she said. "I had no idea that all those pictures, if laid end to end, would reach anything so delightful as this. When I heard that the people of the press and the critics had been invited I hurried right over to Hattie Carnegie's for an appropriate outfit. But Mr. Eyssell wouldn't let me wear it, although it was the loveliest little suit of armor you've ever seen."

Miss Garson had expected to get two or three weeks' vacation out of this trip, but she has been ordered to get back to Hollywood by Monday for costume fittings for her next film, "Beloved Stranger."

So you get a tiara and what happens? You don't have the time to go around showing it off.

Mary Martin opened in "A Love Story With Music" called 'Lute Song,' based on an old Chinese play. It was a beautiful and expensive bore.

KEEPING WAR BONDS

OF all the American War Bonds sold, only 18 per cent, according to the Treasury Department have been turned in for sale. Considering that some bought them unwillingly under pressure from their employers or public opinion, and that others have really needed to have cash on hand, this is a remarkable showing. So the Treasury thinks, saying that it had expected far more to be turned in.

WASHINGTON Report

Truman Seems Impervious
Even to Winter's Blasts

Vet Administration Medicine
Program Receives Praise

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—The reason Secretary of State Jimmy Byrnes caught the cold that almost prevented him from pushing off for London and the UNO is because President Truman asked him to take a little walk down the deck of the presidential yacht on that recent bleak week-end on the Potomac.

Mr. Truman was stepping about without an overcoat. So, Byrnes sprang outside. Also—without an overcoat. Result, Byrnes got the sniffles. Looks like Harry S. will have to bundle up more. His example is too hard on the rest of the boys. It drives them to a Sir Walter Raleigh gesture that agitates the sinus.

SPEAKING OF THE SINUS and the red eyes and the headache that accompany it, it does seem that the great national scientific minds that invented the atomic bomb ought to think up some way to cure the common cold.

GOOD NEWS—The new medical program of the Veterans' administration under Gen. Omar Bradley makes certain that the disabled veterans of World War II get good care. Hitherto the appropriation for physicians was so small that no good physician could afford to even try to live on such an annual wage. Now, most of the V. A. medical positions will offer twice the salary they formerly did. They are tempting ambitious young men and also experienced older men who wish to let down slightly from the grind of independent practice.

DIET AND HEALTH

Amino Acids and Vitamins Vital to Your Good Health

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THERE are many things which enter into the normal nutrition of the human body. Among the most important of these are the protein foods such as meat, milk, eggs, whole-grain cereals.

The proteins in these foods are broken down in the body into chemical substances known as amino acids and these amino acids are then utilized in rebuilding worn out tissues and in building new tissues in the growing child.

Presence of Vitamin

According to Dr. Max Jacobson of New York, there is some relationship between the use of amino acids by the body and the presence of various vitamins. Because of this possibility, a study was carried out using a combination of vitamins and amino acids which was given to the patients both by mouth and by injection under the skin.

About 1000 patients were treated for various diseases. An average of eight to ten injections was found necessary for success although in most instances, according to Dr. Jacobson, a marked improvement was noted after the first few injections. Treatment by mouth was given either separately or combined with the injections and was continued after the injections were stopped.

Physical Exhaustion

The first patients treated were suffering from exhaustion coming from physical strain, prolonged convalescence or recovery from infectious diseases and following operations. The preparation containing the vitamins and amino acids was also used for patients suffering from anemia or a lack of coloring in the blood and from poor nutrition.

It was noted that not only were the patients benefited physically, but there was also relief from nervousness and sleeplessness. Appetite increased and the patients seemed to be able to think more rapidly and clearly. Examinations of the blood were made which showed that there was an increase in the amount of coloring matter and the number of red cells which often developed after the first injection.

The preparation was given also to a number of workers in a defense factory, a department store and the nursing personnel of a hospital. It was found in these persons, too, there was a rapid rise in the coloring matter of the blood and the number of cells after treatment. There was a marked improvement in general health as well as a decrease in absences from work due to sickness.

Dr. Jacobson states that these persons also had increased resistance to infections of the nose and throat. Patients with some hearing disturbances were also treated and it was found that the treatment seemed to sharpen their hearing.

It would appear that the use of the amino acids and vitamins may have value in a number of different disorders.

A JOB FOR JENNY

by Faith Baldwin

SYNOPSIS

Young Jennifer Newton, recently appointed secretary to Justice Hathaway, head of the Seashaven Shipyard, thought her new boss the most attractive man she had ever met, and wondered why his wife, Andrea, remained in England, where she had gone four years ago, following the death of their only child. Jenny also wondered why her predecessor, pretty Charlotte Granley, had resigned to join the Waves, when it was obvious she was in love with Justice. She was further puzzled when Charlotte mentioned having seen Jenny's blond and beautiful sister, Ede, in Boston with Justice a few weeks before. Ede's husband, Capt. Dick Ainslie, and she were with the Marines, and she and Jenny live with their grandmother. Ede and Mary Hathaway, Justice's sister, have become good friends through their Red Cross work. Jenny calls on her godfather, old Dr. Bert Barton, to learn the latest news about his son, Dr. Steve Barton, recently wounded in action.

Mattie, the housekeeper, discloses that Steve is being discharged from the Army and is embittered because his injured hand will make it impossible for him to be a surgeon.

"Of course," said Jenny, "but he hasn't answered."

Steve's father sighed again. He said, "It isn't like him, but he's taking this hard. He can't be a surgeon now, and that's all he ever wanted to be since the days he used to catch frogs at Basset pond and dissect them in the bathroom."

He coughed, and flushed with the effort. He rose from the stool and set his glass down on the table. "Come into the office, Jennifer," he said, "and talk, although you and Mattie have doubtless exhausted all the really good scandal. How's everyone at home?"

"Fine," said Jenny, following him out of the kitchen. "Gram's sprier than I am, and Ede's all right. Only, of course, not very happy."

"Who in thunder is, nowadays?" demanded Dr. Barton, "except healthy infants who cannot understand the conversation, anxieties and sorrows of their elders—to say nothing of their neuroses—and who, by the same token, can't read. Come in, and sit down."

The office was big, with many windows. There was an old couch across one wall and by the fireplace the doctor's cluttered desk, his vast chair and the facing chair, and Mattie rose, went to the icebox and returned with a glass of milk. She said, "He had to go out during supper and never did finish eating."

"And I shouldn't be eating this," said Dr. Barton, biting into the doughnut with appreciation.

He was a very big man, and had taken on weight in the last few years. He had a large head and a great shock of white hair. His face was brown and lined. He was Mattie's age, but looked older. Under the darkness of his skin there was a gray pallor that frightened Jenny.

"You're working too hard," she said.

"Oh, sure," said Barton, "and who isn't? There's not a young man left, as you well know, Jenny. Mathews, Brown and I have to take on all Seashaven and the outlying rural districts. We haven't enough nurses, and as for getting patients into the Northampton hospital, it's damned near impossible."

"Don't excite yourself," said Mattie mildly, as she always did. He grinned, and ignored her, as usual.

"Mathews," he said, "is a G. F. But he's even older than I am, which makes him Methusalem. Brown's a surgeon, and has more than he can do. Of course, there's Peters, but he specializes . . . or did—now he doesn't, as much."

He sighed. He added, "When Steve comes home—"

"When will that be?" asked Jenny. "Mattie says you've heard from him again."

"I don't know the date. I've had just one letter from him since the phone call, and he's still in the hospital in California. . . . I gave you the address. Have you written him?"

"Of course," said Jenny, "but he hasn't answered."

Steve's father sighed again. He said, "It isn't like him, but he's taking this hard. He can't be a surgeon now, and that's all he ever wanted to be since the days he used to catch frogs at Basset pond and dissect them in the bathroom."

He coughed, and flushed with the effort. He rose from the stool and set his glass down on the table. "Come into the office, Jennifer," he said, "and talk, although you and Mattie have doubtless exhausted all the really good scandal. How's everyone at home?"

"Fine," said Jenny, following him out of the kitchen. "Gram's sprier than I am, and Ede's all right. Only, of course, not very happy."

"Who in thunder is, nowadays?" demanded Dr. Barton, "except healthy infants who cannot understand the conversation, anxieties and sorrows of their elders—to say nothing of their neuroses—and who, by the same token, can't read. Come in, and sit down."

CURE FOR INFLATION

THERE is only one preventive of inflation, one cure for it when once started. Production in quantity is preventive and cure both.

As long as stiff-necked leaders of labor and industry both insist on holding men idle in important industries, they are contributing to inflation—not to a mere inflationary discomfort, but to the kind of inflation which soon becomes a serious danger.

Both sides know they must get together some time at some point. Why do not the workers produce while negotiations go on? Raises later agreed on can be made retroactive. Idleness during discussion creates losses to everyone.

The American people are beginning to come into the strike picture. Labor, Management, Administration, all must reckon with the voice of the people, long in arousing to expression, but, once articulated, hard to silence. That voice now says sternly: "Let the work go on!"

TOO MUCH TALK

DESPITE the fact that Georgia's Senator Russell staged a four and a half hour talking marathon during the senate filibuster the other day, he broke no oratorical records. The senator, who was holding forth against President Truman's Fair Employment Practices Commission bill, is still a long way behind the filibustering champion, Senator R. M. LaFollette, who spoke for 18 hours and 23 minutes against a 1908 currency bill, and for a good deal of that time read names from a Washington telephone book.

In the present filibuster Russell was joined by other senators, among them the two from Mississippi—Bilbo, experienced in obstruction, and his less seasoned colleagues Eastland. The latter is reported to fortify himself for such arduous speech-making by following athletes' training rules of early-to-bed and a careful diet.

This barrage of words against the FEPC is a legal part of the American system, one phase of democracy at work. The senators, who go to Washington to carry out the people's will, apparently think the folks back home want them to talk.

HOSE VISIBILITY

WOMEN'S stockings are going to continue scarce for many months, say the trade experts. And many women seem distressed about it. But a mere man may be pardoned, perhaps, for failing to understand what the grief is about. For so far as an ordinary male can see, in an ordinary situation, the difference—if any—between nylons and no nylons is practically imperceptible.

Of course the matter probably looks different to a woman.

UP AND DOWN BROADWAY

By JACK GAVEN

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—The earnings of a top movie star being what they are, the chances are pretty good that Miss Greer Garson will never have to transact business with a pawn broker, but anyway she now has a tiara against a possible rainy day.

She picked up the topaze-studded red and yellow gold headpiece in a private salon of the Radio City music hall before a small gathering (they were gathering in drinks and sandwiches) of press people. The music hall management made the gift and was big enough to admit that a certain amount of crass commercialism entered into the deal.

G. S. Eyssell, president and manager of the place, pointed out that it had been decided to crown Miss Garson as "queen of the Music Hall" because since 1940 she has headed the casts of seven successful films which have played a total of 54 weeks to 8,011,166 persons in his theater. And it just so happens that today brought the Music Hall premiere of her latest, "Adventure," with Clark Gable—"Gable's back and Garson got him," as the ads say.

Miss Garson showed up chaperoned by a publicity man from the M-G-M factory in Hollywood; her mother, Mrs. Nina Garson, who arrived with her by train from the coast on Monday, and her mother-in-law, Mrs. Charlotte Ney, of Washington D. C. The star's husband, actor Richard Dix, stayed in Hollywood.

The actress wore a knee-length afternoon gown which consisted of a black velvet upper section, with a neckline that revealed a great deal of Greer, and a skirt of gold on black in a herringbone pattern. She wore a gold necklace and black slippers and carried a black persian pouch with gold trimmings.

When Eyssell placed the tiara on her pink champagne colored hair, she stood it for about 30 seconds and then had to fiddle with it after the manner of anyone dissatisfied with outside efforts at arranging a hat on the head. She took it off while she made a little speech of thanks.

"Life is full of surprises," she said. "I had no idea that all those pictures, if laid end to end, would reach anything so delightful as this. When I heard that the people of the press and the critics had been invited I hurried right over to Hattie Carnegie's for an appropriate outfit. But Mr. Eyssell wouldn't let me wear it, although it was the loveliest little suit of armor you've ever seen."

Miss Garson had expected to get two or three weeks' vacation out of this trip, but she has been ordered to get back to Hollywood by Monday for costume fittings for her next film, "Beloved Stranger."

So you get a tiara and what happens? You don't have the time to go around showing it off.

Mary Martin opened in "A Love Story With Music" called "Lute Song," based on an old Chinese play. It was a beautiful and expensive bore.

KEEPING WAR BONDS

OF all the American War Bonds sold, only 18 per cent, according to the Treasury Department have been turned in for sale. Considering that some bought them unwillingly under pressure from their employers or public opinion, and that others have really needed to have cash on hand, this is a remarkable showing. So the Treasury thinks, saying that it had expected far more to be turned in.

Truman Seems Impervious

Vet Administration Medic
Program Receives Praise

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—The reason Secretary of State Jimmy Byrnes caught the cold that almost prevented him from pushing off for London and the UNO is because President Truman asked him to take a little walk down the deck of the presidential yacht on that recent bleak week-end on the Potomac.

Mr. Truman was stepping about without an overcoat. So, Byrnes sprang outside. Also—without an overcoat. Result, Byrnes got the sniffles. Looks like Harry S. will have to bundle up more. His example is too hard on the rest of the boys. It drives them to a Sir Walter Raleigh gesture that agitates the sinus.

SPEAKING OF THE SINUS and the red eyes and the headache that accompany it, it does seem that the great national scientific minds that invented the atomic bomb ought to think up some way to cure the common cold.

GOOD NEWS—The new medical program of the Veterans' administration under Gen. Omar Bradley makes certain that the disabled veterans of World War II get good care. Hitherto the appropriation for physicians was so small that no good physician could afford to even try to live on such an annual wage. Now, most of the V. A. medical positions will offer twice the salary they formerly did. They are tempting ambitious young men and also experienced older men who wish to let down slightly from the grind of independent practice.

DIET AND HEALTH

Amino Acids and Vitamins Vital to Your Good Health

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THERE are many things which enter into the normal nutrition of the human body. Among the most important of these are the protein foods such as meat, milk, eggs, whole-grain cereals.

The proteins in these foods are broken down in the body into chemical substances known as amino acids and these amino acids are then utilized in rebuilding worn out tissues and in building new tissues in the growing child.

Presence of Vitamin

According to Dr. Max Jacobson of New York, there is some relationship between the use of amino acids by the body and the presence of various vitamins. Because of this possibility, a study was carried out using a combination of vitamins and amino acids which was given to the patients both by mouth and by injection under the skin.

About 1000 patients were treated for various diseases. An average of eight to ten injections was found necessary for success although in most instances, according to Dr. Jacobson, a marked improvement was noted after the first few injections. Treatment by mouth was given either separately or combined with the injections and was continued after the injections were stopped.

Physical Exhaustion

The first patients treated were suffering from exhaustion coming from physical strain, prolonged convalescence or recovery from infectious diseases and following operations. The preparation containing the vitamins and amino acids was also used for patients suffering from anemia or a lack of coloring in the blood and from poor nutrition.

It was noted that not only were the patients benefited physically, but there was also relief from nervousness and sleeplessness. Appetite increased and the patients seemed to be able to think more rapidly and clearly. Examinations of the blood were made which showed that there was an increase in the amount of coloring matter and the number of red cells which often developed after the first injection.

The preparation was given also to a number of workers in a defense factory, a department store and the nursing personnel of a hospital. It was found in these persons, too, there was a rapid rise in the coloring matter of the blood and the number of cells after treatment. There was a marked improvement in general health as well as a decrease in absences from work due to sickness.

Dr. Jacobson states that these persons also had increased resistance to infections of the nose and throat. Patients with some hearing disturbances were also treated and it was found that the treatment seemed to sharpen their hearing.

It would appear that the use of the amino acids and vitamins may have value in a number of different disorders.

SYNOPSIS

Young Jennifer Newton, recently appointed secretary to Justice Hathaway, head of the Seashaven Shipyard, thought her new boss the most attractive man she had ever met, and wondered why his wife, Andrea, remained in England, where she had gone four years ago, following the death of their only child. Jenny also wondered why her predecessor, pretty Charlotte Granley, had resigned to join the WAVES, when it was obvious she was in love with Justice. She was further puzzled when Charlotte mentioned having seen Jenny's blond and beautiful sister, Ede, in Boston with Justice a few weeks before. Ede's husband, Capt. Dick Alansie, is overseas with the Marines, and she and Jenny live with her mother, Mrs. Ede and Mary Hathaway. Justice's sister, Mary Hathaway, Justice's sister, has become good friends through their Red Cross work. Jenny calls on her godfather, old Dr. Bert Barton, to learn the latest news about his son, Dr. Steve Barton, recently wounded in action. Justice, the housekeeper, discloses that Steve is being discharged from the Army and is embittered because his injured hand will make it impossible for him to be a surgeon.

CHAPTER SEVEN

MATTIE PUT her glasses back on her nose.

"How's your grandma?" she asked.

They talked of Gram, and Ede, Ede's husband, of the shipyard and, presently, of Jenny's new job. "They say," said Mattie, "that half the Hathaway servants left, but Mary Hathaway brought new help up from New York. Not that they'll last any longer than the rest," she added.

They heard, presently, slow, heavy footsteps and Dr. Barton put his head in at the door. "Hello, Jennifer," he said, "gossiping, you girls?"

"I came to see you, too," she told him. "Twice lately I've been in and you weren't here. Gram says, when are you coming to dinner?"

"Ask Mattie when I have time to eat." He sat down on a kitchen stool, said, "Give me a doughnut," and Mattie rose, went to the icebox and returned with a glass of milk. She said, "He had to go out during supper and never did finish eating."

"And I shouldn't be eating this," said Dr. Barton, biting into the doughnut with appreciation.

He was a very big man, and had taken on weight in the last few years. He had a large head and a great shock of white hair. His face was brown and lined. He was Mattie's age, but looked older. Under the darkness of his skin there was a gray pallor that frightened Jenny.

"You're working too hard," she said.

"Oh, sure," said Barton, "and who isn't? There's not a young man left, as you well know, Jenny. Mathews, Brown and I have to take on all Seashaven and the outlying rural districts. We haven't enough nurses, and as for getting patients into the Northam hospital, it's darned near impossible."

"Don't excite yourself," said Mattie mildly, as she always did. He grinned, and ignored her, as usual.

"Mathews," he said, "is a G. P. But he's even older than I am, which makes him Methuselah. Brown's a surgeon, and has more than he can do. Of course, there's Peters, but he specializes: . . . or did—now he doesn't, as much."

He sighed. He added, "When Steve comes home—"

"When will that be?" asked Jenny. "Mattie says you've heard from him again."

"I don't know the date. I've had just one letter from him since the phone call, and he's still in the hospital in California. . . . I gave you the address. Have you written him?"

"Of course," said Jenny, "but he hasn't answered."

Steve's father sighed again. He said, "It isn't like him, but he's taking this hard. He can't be a surgeon now, and that's all he ever wanted to be since the days he used to catch frogs at Bassett pond and dissect them in the bathroom."

He coughed, and flushed with the effort. He rose from the stool and set his glass down on the table.

"Come into the office, Jennifer," he said, "and talk, although you've said all the really good scandal. How's everyone at home?"

"Fine," said Jenny, following him out of the kitchen. "Gram's spryier than I am, and Ede's all right. Only, of course, not very happy."

"Who in thunder is, nowadays?" demanded Dr. Barton, "except healthy infants who cannot understand the conversation, anxieties and sorrows of their elders—to say wno, by the same token, can't read. Come in, and sit down."

The office was big, with many windows. There was an old couch across one wall and by the fireplace the doctor's cluttered desk, his vast chair and the facing chair, for patients. Books crowded the shelves and the room was permeated with a faint scent of tobacco and medicine. It was a comfortable and shabby room, the fireplace blackened with the smoke of innumerable fires. The examining room beyond was bright with metal and very modern. But the office had been the same for as long as Jenny could remember and for years before that.

"Mind if I lie down?" asked Barton, and lowered his bulk to the couch, grunting slightly. He punched at a pillow and wadded it under his head. He added apologetically, "Have to go out tonight, probably."

Jenny turned the big chair to face him and sat down in it. She did not like his color, nor his look of strain. She said gently, "You're pretty tired."

"Me and everyone else," he answered, and smiled at her. "Don't worry."

"Steve will."

He drew his heavy brows together, "I suppose so," he answered. "Normally I'd try to keep him from it—but perhaps it will be good for him."

"Why?" asked Jenny.

"His hand," said Barton. "Oh, there's no use evading it, Jenny. He's very bitter. He had big dreams and they were likely to come true. He's a hard worker, and brilliant. Now he has to resign himself to routine practice—not only on account of his hand, but because of me . . ."

Jenny asked, after a minute, "Are you going to tell me about it?"

"Yes," answered Barton, as if astonished, "I am. I think Steve's fonder of you than of anyone in the world except me. And you can help him more than I. You're a woman, Jenny," he explained, smiling, "and his contemporary, even if he's a decade older. Those ten years made a lot of difference when you were a long-legged little kid and he was in college . . . but not now." He broke off and reached in his pocket for his pipe. Jenny took some matches from the desk and offered them to him, but he shook his head. He cradled the cold pipe in his hands and went on: "You know the boy. He's a stubborn fellow. And he feels things deeply. If he had only his hand to worry about, well—," he shrugged—"but now," he added, "he has me, and maybe that's a good thing."

"Why aren't you smoking?" she asked gravely, for he was a prodigious smoker when, his work over, he could temporarily relax.

"Smart girl," he answered. "Only because I've been told not to, my dear."

"It's your heart," said Jenny flatly.

"Yup," he said heavily. "Darned thing got tired, dragging me around. I saw Mathews, then I sneaked off to Boston and consulted a cardiac man. But he couldn't do much more than confirm Mathews' diagnosis—and my own. I'm not too dumb, you know. So I have to ease off. I asked him, how am I supposed to do that with most of the profession gone to war? Civilian still get sick. So he gave me my choice. Said I could keep on driving myself and live for a while or taper off and live perhaps my allotted span, whatever that is. So I picked the short life. What else could I do? But now the picture's changed. Steve is coming back, he'll take over and I'll rust, quietly. He broke off and looked at her. "What a darned fool I am! Jenny, probably."

She wiped the tears from her face with the back of her hand as a child would. She said, "Don't mind me, Uncle Bert, it was a shock, that's all."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

CROWDING NOT AN EVIL. "CROWDING THE bidding" is usually considered a mark of non-experience, especially crowding in such a way that not all vital information can be exchanged between the partners below the 3-No Trump level. It often results in the pair having to choose a contract which is not the very best for it. But when enough strength is in sight to justify going past that height, perhaps on to slam, the crowding may prove a virtue.

South, as he reckoned, was really obliged to go past the No Trump game level and bid four or more, which he did, at 4-Diamonds without ever showing his clubs. When North jumped that to small slam, the kibitzer was startled. It had not occurred to him that a diamond slam was in the cards, but it was. South was able to ruff the third round of hearts, discard a losing club on the two good hearts and thus get home with the loss of only a trick to the club A.

The No Trump declarer lost two tricks, a club and a heart, as East destroyed his chance to squeeze with diamonds against West's clubs and spades, by leading a spade at the start and again when in with the club A. Anyway, the slam had not been bid at Table 1.

Mrs. Paul Johnson Is Speaker At Session

When the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the First Methodist church met in the church parlor Thursday afternoon, Mrs. W. F. Heine, president, presided.

Mrs. Vernon Blake, spiritual life chairman, led the worship service, using the text "Go Ye Into All The World". Scripture reading was of the 28th chapter of Matthew 16-20 verses. Mrs. Harry Griner, Mrs. G. H. Adkins and Mrs. Harold Pontius, members of Circle one, took part in this service. Miss Reba Lee was pianist for group singing.

Mrs. W. L. Sprouse, leader, told of the project which the Girl's Interest group has undertaken for this year. The local church activities committee was authorized to have the kitchens painted, cleaned and to buy needed equipment for them. In deference to the wishes of the 1945 members of Circle 7, the society voted to set aside the surplus money ($121.48) which had been turned in by the group for the purchase of silverware, in memory of their late chairman, Mrs. Charles Stoffer.

Programs for the year were given to members.

Mrs. Frank Morrison, vice president and program leader, told of how pertinent is the topic of Africa. She read several recent newspaper articles showing how often Africa is in today's news and then introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. Paul Johnson, who used her subject, "This Is Africa".

Mrs. Johnson used a large map to illustrate her subject, telling that only three countries in that vast territory are under independent rule. Ninety-six per cent of the population is controlled by one or another of the European countries. Of the population of 160,000,000 only 5,000,000 are white, the native races are known as Bushmen, Hottentots, Negro and Pygmy.

She stated that though the Mediterranean Sea had been no barrier to contact with other nations, the desert and climate and health conditions had kept white people from the territory. She stated that native Africans are not uneducated by nature, she said they had retentive memories but that their education was of a practical nature. She described their villages and life and told how their drums were as their radios and their dances their only recreation.

There are three types of schools, small, central type and the urban or boarding schools.

The industrial picture, Mrs. Johnson said is very interesting, great mineral wealth, most of which is untouched, gold, diamonds, copper with plenty of power from the large rivers and falls. Labor is available the drawbacks being no markets and no capital.

Mrs. Johnson pointed out that of the 50 leading ports in the world not one of them are in Africa.

Modern medicine is another needed requisite.

He died there in 1873. There are now over 6,500,000 communicant converts there.

REP. FRANCIS CASE, South Dakota Republican, is author of a new "anti-strike" bill, that won its first test in Congress, when the House voted 253 to 114 to hear debate on the measure, which has the backing of a powerful bloc of Republicans and southern Democrats. The bill would penalize unions for violating contracts, outlaw boycotts, jurisdictional and sympathy strikes, create a new labor-management mediation board with broad powers and provide for a 30-day cooling off period during which no strike could be called. The bill is offered as a substitute for the watered-down version of Truman's fact-finding bill. (International)

Circleville Public Library Had Busy Year During 1945

CIRCULATION OF 67,470 BOOKS IS REPORTED

Mrs. Clark Will Renamed President of Library Trustee Board

Mrs. Clark Will was renamed president and Rev. L. E. Sherburne again chosen as vice-president of the Circleville board of library trustees at the election of officers held at the annual library board meeting held recently. Mr. George Groom, Rev. Sherburne, and Ray Davis were reappointed by Mayor Ben Gordon to serve another term on the board. Other members now serving are Miss Margaret Rooney, Clark Hunsicker, and Mrs. Clark Will.

The Circleville Public Library has had a very busy year as a reference and educational center as well as for the circulation of books, periodicals, and other materials. It was pointed out by the librarian, Mrs. Enid Denham, in her annual report to the board.

"Over 785 reference questions were answered by the staff, some of them involving a great deal of research. In all more than 1920 books themselves were consulted to find the answers to these questions, for contrary to popular belief, no reference question is ever answered without the backing of an authority or a related article of verification, no matter how well the staff member may know the solution. These are not the routine questions of a good book about planes, a horse... a murder mystery' but such specific problems as the construction of an outdoor fireplace, pictures of a Norwegian costume, a Spanish folk-dance with music, how to score a bowling match, parties for the ten-year old with suitable refreshments, stunts for church group, the address of a national organization, or illustrations for Christmas cards that can be made by the second grade age level, the report stated.

"These are just some of the questions for which we supply the answers. More and more teachers are sending their children down to the library with special projects to look up, or special assignments that can be found more readily with library reference materials. On several occasions, all of the available chairs and tables have been in use for these projects and these youngsters. Composers of music, breeds of cattle, and other farm animals, world history and biology essays have all used the library's resources and found them helpful, Mrs. Denham continued.

"A very gratifying part of the work is the task of supplying the county children with reading materials. In September, after consulting County Superintendent of Schools George McDowell, the librarian wrote to the school heads inviting them to make use of the library resources by taking large graded collections sufficient to cover their pupils' needs directly to the schools and to let the children take them home for study and recreation.

"Four hundred books were borrowed from the state library to supplement the resources for this purpose. Several schools have taken advantage of this offer. Since September, 1797 books were loaned to schools and teachers in the county. Circulation of these books totaled 5541. Circulation from books loaned to Circleville high school was 487. We mention this figure in this connection since Wayne township school sends its students to Circleville high school. And these are the only books readily available to them. While such service cannot supplant the efficiency of the bookmobile and is in no way intended to do so, it is a means of furnishing needed material on a smaller scale until the county again supports the idea of the book truck system that found such great favor among the rural population and the outlying districts of Pickaway county," she said.

Total circulation numbered 67,470 books withdrawn for home use, 28,538 of these by juveniles, 38,932 by adults. Of the latter, 10,037 were non-fiction with current State speakers for the Institute are Miss Carrie A. Wilson, of Sunbury, and Ralph White, of Richmond. The school will have charge of the opening session and the churches of the township will handle the other four sessions.

A display of farm produce will be arranged in the gymnasium and a poster contest for the school-children will be held. Door prizes will be given at each session.

periodicals taking the lead with 1629, literature in second place with 1548 volumes. The children read almost as much regular 14 day fiction as did their elders. Their second choice was social science which includes fairy tales, then useful arts, or how to make and do things, airplanes, cooking, gardening, etc. third in popularity in non-fiction was biography.

Here again we may see the correlation of the library for education, the close relationship of the library and the school, Mrs. Denham said.

The adults also read 24,694 books of fiction and 4,201 rentals. Biggest month of the year as regards circulation was November which was also Book Week Month with displays and exhibits for the children.

"It is fortunate that clubs with literary resources before planning their programs for the year. In this way we can anticipate the needs and make arrangements that each part of the program may be supplied with the material required Monday Club, Child Conservation League, Child Study Club, Garden Club and all manner of church groups have found materials for papers, program aids, talks, games, and entertainment," Mrs. Denham said.

During 1945, 967 persons registered or re-registered at the library to become active borrowers. This brings the total membership up to 2,778 with one fifth of the entire registration county members or 589; 2,189 residents of the city itself.

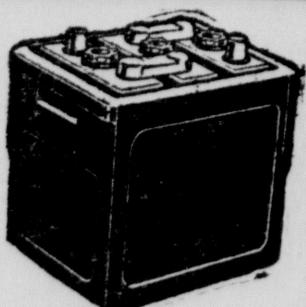

It was in 1945 too that the librarian attended the Ohio State Library Convention at Columbus and was a speaker at one of the sessions; she also gave book talks and library talks to four school groups, two parent-teacher meetings, and one church group.

There were 1621 new books added to the library during the year. 830 of these adult, 496 for the children. Six newspapers are received regularly and there are about a hundred periodicals and magazines, besides many useful pamphlets. Some idea of the use of these pamphlets may be realized when we know that 229 were taken for home use in 1945 and many more used at the library. Added to this are 1669 periodicals taken for home use from the library, and probably as many more read here.

On the library staff are Mrs. Enid Denham, librarian, Miss Wilmina Phebus and Miss Jessie Cummings, professional assistants, Mrs. Barton Deming and Miss Jeanne Spangler, assistants. Custodians of the building are Frank Carpenter and Mrs. Mary Birkhead.

BOY SCOUT WORK DISCUSSED AT ROTARY MEETING

Gil Bolin, Boy Scout field executive, spoke to the Rotary Club Thursday on "Scouting" as a part of the observance of the 36th anniversary of the Scout organization being conducted this week.

Mr. Bolin announced that the organization was incorporated 36 years ago Thursday and that it had grown to embrace 3,000,000 boys in many countries.

He showed movies depicting Boy Scout work of all types in various parts of the country. One film depicted how a boy can be assisted by home training and how Scout training makes him a better man.

Scouting begins with "The Cubs," which boys can join at the age of nine, then comes the Boy Scout troops and then senior Scouting. Those interested in Scouting who go to college can continue their Scouting work by becoming members of the Scouting fraternity, Alpha Phi Omega, which does service work on college campuses and in the college communities. Scouting never ends as adults can be "Scouters," those interested in promoting the Boy Scout work.

Scouting is learning by doing, he said. It develops character as each boy must advance on his own merits, he added.

Circleville Public Library Had Busy Year During 1945

CIRCULATION OF 67,470 BOOKS IS REPORTED

Mrs. Clark Will Renamed President Of Library Trustee Board

Mrs. Clark Will was renamed president and Rev. L. E. Sherburne again chosen as vice-president of the Circleville board of library trustees at the election of officers held at the annual library board meeting held recently. Mr. George Groom, Rev. Sherburne, and Ray Davis were reappointed by Mayor Ben Gordon to serve another term on the board. Other members now serving are Miss Margaret Rooney, Clark Hunsicker, and Mrs. Clark Will.

The Circleville Public Library has had a very busy year as a reference and educational center as well as for the circulation of books, periodicals, and other materials. It was pointed out by the librarian, Mrs. Enid Denham, in her annual report to the board.

"Over 785 reference questions were answered by the staff, some of them involving a great deal of research. In all more than 1920 books themselves were consulted to find the answers to these questions, for contrary to popular belief, no reference question is ever answered without the backing of an authority or a related article of verification, no matter how well the staff member may know the solution. These are not the routine questions of 'a good book about planes, a horse, ... a murder mystery' but such specific problems as the construction of an outdoor fireplace, pictures of a Norwegian costume, a Spanish folk-dance with music, how to score a bowling match, parties for the ten-year old with suitable refreshments, stunts for church group, the address of a national organization, or illustrations for Christmas cards that can be made by the second grade age level, the report stated.

"These are just some of the questions for which we supply the answers. More and more teachers are sending their children down to the library with special projects to look up, or special assignments that can be found more readily with library reference materials. On several occasions, all of the available chairs and tables have been in use for these projects and these youngsters. Composers of music, breeds of cattle, and other farm animals, world history and biology essays have all used the library's resources and found them helpful, Mrs. Denham continued.

"A very gratifying part of the work is the task of supplying the county children with reading materials. In September, after consulting County Superintendent of Schools George McDowell, the librarian wrote to the school heads inviting them to make use of the library resources by taking large graded collections sufficient to cover their pupils' needs directly to the schools and to let the children take them home for study and recreation.

"Four hundred books were borrowed from the state library to supplement the resources for this purpose. Several schools have taken advantage of this offer. Since September, 1797 books were loaned to schools and teachers in the county. Circulation of these books totaled 5541. Circulation from books loaned to Circleville high school was 487. We mention this figure in this connection since Wayne township school sends its students to Circleville high school. And these are the only books readily available to them. While such service cannot supplant the efficiency of the bookmobile and is in no way intended to do so, it is a means of furnishing needed material on a smaller scale until the county again supports the idea of the book truck system that found such great favor among the rural population and the outlying districts of Pickaway county," she said.

Total circulation numbered 67,470 books withdrawn for home use, 28,558 of these by juveniles, 38,932 by adults. Of the latter, 10,037 were non-fiction with current
